FACULTY DEVELOPMENT PROGRAM (FDP)&TRAINING PROGRAM

Faculty development programmes are efforts created to help and improve the professional development and effectiveness of faculty members at higher education institutions. With the objective of enhancing teaching, research, and service, these programmes seek to give faculty members opportunities for learning, skill development, and networking. Workshops, seminars, conferences, mentorship programmes, and other activities that concentrate on various areas of faculty roles, such as pedagogy, curriculum design, assessment, research methodology, technology integration, leadership, and career progression, can be included in faculty development programmes. For participation in online or offline programmes run by reputable organizations or academic institutions with a minimum one-day duration, the organization makes a financial contribution.

The actual costs for the registration fee, TD, and DA will be repaid to national and international FDPs upon presentation of authentic receipts. Faculty must get advance approval from the Principal through their HODs with enough time to spare before the programme. HODs must take the appropriate steps to ensure that departmental operations run smoothly when faculty members are not present.
